

Top 15 Reasons why Friends are Important.

1. Read the Article " Top 15 Reasons why Friends are Important" link:
<http://listaka.com/top-15-reasons-why-friends-are-important-part-of-your-life/?slide=79QUa7nN>
2. Find unknown words in a dictionary
3. Try to understand what the article says. Repeat phrases or paragraphs that contain interesting language. Try saying aloud what the article is about.
4. Use at least 15 phrases from the box below to answer the question (in writing):
What are friends important? Think and organize your writing in terms of "support", "advice" and "shared experiences".

While giving your answer you should not look back to the article, if possible. That's why you should have spent some time studying the article before attempting to answer the question.

not share a drop of blood with sb	hold the closest spot in our hearts
our family outside the closed walls of house	indescribable share all the little and large secrets	embarrassing moments gain the confidence	take risks
	the belief they show
stick by	feel comfortable around them receivers of late night's calls companions to strangers' parties	partner in the class benches share and hear endless jokes	partners in our crimes moments that remain enlightened in our hearts	break the rules don't judge or preach	a shoulder to cry on they bring the harsh truth in front of us	flaws weaknesses
ugly truths	insecurities difficult endeavors
	unconditional love
make us roll on the floor laughing	encourage us to try things

Example Answer.

The importance of friends in our life is indescribable. They are the people who hold the closest spot in our hearts, the family outside the closed walls of house, despite the fact that we don't share a drop of blood with them.

Friends are people we trust and we share our life, our secrets, our experiences with them. They know all our little and large secrets. They know about our first date, first kiss, our family problems, our embarrassing moments. They know our flaws, weaknesses, ugly truths and insecurities and still stay with us offering their unconditional love. They are always present by our sides. They are our partners in the class benches, our companions in strangers' parties and the receivers of late night calls. They are even our partners in crime. Together we break the school rules, push each other to do things our parents do not approve of and then face the consequences. They are also the ones we share endless jokes with. They can make us roll on the floor laughing and those moments remain enlightened in our hearts forever.

Good friends are there for us in the bad and good moments of life. They support us at our most difficult endeavors even if they do not always believe in our ideas and plans. Sometimes, we gain the confidence to take risks and try new things only because of the belief they show in us. And if things go wrong, they offer us their shoulder to cry on. They don't judge or preach but just listen to us.

They are also the ones we turn to for advice. They know us well and are able to see things in us we are unaware of. True friends do not hesitate to bring the harsh truth in front of us, to say what they really believe although it may sound unpleasant to us.

Life without friends would be unimaginable. Hence we should appreciate our friends for their love and care and never miss a chance to tell them how special they are in our lives.