

Code: Model Composition 4a

Type: Review of a film

Topic: Write review of a book you have read

---

Hard Core

(Introduction: The facts – title, producer, actor(s), when it came out)

“Hard Core” is a comedy set in a quiet London neighbourhood. The director of the film is Al Brown and Tony Cart plays the lead role as Jerry. The film came out in 2007 and became an immediate success.

(Narration of the plot in present simple)

Jerry is an unemployed young man who wanders the streets of London. One day he becomes the only eye witness of a car theft and there the adventure begins. The police arrest him as suspect and only one police officer believes that he is innocent. Jerry, with the help of the officer, escapes and tries to find the true robbers. The film reaches a humorous climax when Jerry pretending to be a priest goes to the house of the robbers for a confession...

(The Quality features: acting, music, photography, cohesion of the plot)

The plot is well-developed. However, it has a predicable end. The cast is excellent and the music is superb. The film is full of hilarious scenes as it successfully portrays the prejudice against the poor and the unemployed.

(Conclusion: Your recommendation)

All in all it is definitely worth seeing it. It is appropriate for all the family. Don't miss it.